LUDMILLA RADCHENKO

Ludmilla Radchenko is a contemporary multidisciplinary artist whose work moves between art, design, fashion, and conceptual storytelling, with visual art remaining the core of her creative identity.

After more than 17 years based in Italy, where she developed a solid international career, Radchenko collaborated with galleries, institutions, and private collectors, and presented her work in numerous exhibitions across Europe and beyond. Her artistic language, recognizable for its bold symbolism, irony, and layered visual narratives, has always reflected a deep interest in human nature, identity, and transformation.

Throughout her career, Ludmilla's practice expanded beyond canvas into fashion, design objects, and art-driven brands, creating a kaleidoscope of experiences rooted in one central axis: art as a tool for reflection, empowerment, and dialogue. This multidimensional approach allowed her to connect with diverse audiences, from collectors and creatives to public figures and international brands.

In 2025, following a year of profound personal and artistic transformation, Ludmilla Radchenko relocated to Dubai — a city she perceives not as a destination, but as a new platform for scale, experimentation, and growth. Wings of Power marks her first series created in Dubai and represents the beginning of a new chapter, where accumulated experience, inner evolution, and a renewed artistic vision converge.

Dear Universe, forgive my sins, teach me how to fly, and help me create a new version of myself — one that accepts who I am and rises through my strength and my light.

Wings of Power is the first series created by Ludmilla Radchenko in Dubai.
It marks a new chapter - not only geographically, but artistically and personally.

This series was born during a year of profound transformation, initiated by a journey to Nepal.
Immersed in a culture where inner work is not hidden but practiced, the artist encountered a philosophy that does not divide the human being into “good” and “bad,” but into conscious and unconscious.

At the core of the series lies a powerful duality.

The tigers embody the Seven Deadly Sins — not as moral judgment, but as raw human forces:

instinct, desire, fear, excess, anger, pride, inertia.

They represent what lives in the body, in impulse, in survival.

Opposite to them appear the Wings.

The wings are not decoration, and not escape.

They are the opposing force — awareness, elevation, transformation.

They bring the sins to the surface, pull them out of the shadow, and give them air.

In this dialogue, nothing is denied.

Sin is not destroyed — it is revealed, understood, and transformed.

Each artwork becomes a moment of tension between falling and rising, between instinct and consciousness, between what binds us and what liberates us.

Wings of Power is a series about self-observation.

About the courage to look at one’s own shadows — and the strength to grow wings from them.

Created in Dubai. Born from Nepal.

Rooted in a year where the artist herself crossed from one version of self into another.
